

Newsletter 21st October 2021

It was great to see such a large attendance at Parents Evening this week. It has been a very positive start to the school year, and I am sure this was reflected in the conversations that many of you had with the teachers. Thank you also for all of the Harvest Festival donations. We will be holding an assembly with the children tomorrow, with the Salvation Army also in attendance to receive the donations.

Next half-term should be a really exciting one, as we build towards all the Christmas activities. The children will be starting rehearsals for the school Christmas production soon after the break, and it will be fantastic to be able to run this again after not being able to last year.

Finally, the Knowledge Organiser Quiz will be kept open for one more week– to give children a last chance to have a go during half-term week (link below). There is also a link below to Norwich Science Week, which is running over half-term with lots of interesting and educational events for children.
